Get blue with Paul DesLauriers at Dominion

Quebec's hottest blues/rock band is coming to the Highlands. The multi-award winning Paul DesLauriers Band will be playing the Dominion Hotel in Minden in the evening of Oct 3rd. The band will be opening the fifth season of the Canadian Blues Legends Series while also helping with the ongoing celebrations of the Dominion's 150th year.

DesLauriers is at the very pinnacle of creative guitarists in Canada and is a Maple Blues Guitarist of the Year winner. He fronts an impressive trio consisting of 2015 Maple Blues Bassist of the Year Greg Morency and Maple Blues nominee Sam Harrisson on drums. The group has also won numerous Quebec awards.

DesLauriers started playing piano when he was just four years old and he studied classical violin up until the age of 14. His older brother introduced him to the world of rock and the blues and he started playing around with an acoustic guitar when he was 10. He taught himself how to play, and by the time he was 15 Paul was playing local clubs in his hometown of Cornwall, Ont.

"Those early days were a very valuable experience," DesLauriers says "and I discovered great blues and rock guitarists early on; Hendrix, Clapton, Peter Green. And then I worked backwards to the early greats like Robert Johnson, Muddy Waters, Son House and the Delta Blues. The music that I play now is based on that."

For his Minden show DesLauriers will be showing his virtuosity as well as some delicate dynamics. "We like to take people on a voyage," he said. "So if you're a fan of music this is a show for you."

The self-titled Paul DesLauriers Band CD hit #1 on the iTunes Canada Top Ten Blues Albums chart, less than a month after its release, so as you can see the band is on a roll.

Don't miss the dynamic Paul DesLauriers Band. Tickets are available for the Oct. 3 show online at DominionHotelPub.ca or by pick-up at the hotel 113 Bobcaygeon Rd in Minden.

Fentanyl patch return program launches

If one life is saved or one accidental overdose is prevented, then efforts to create a new harm-reduction program in Haliburton County are worth every minute of time.

So says Haliburton Highlands OPP Constable Dianna Dauphinee, who is among a group of local law enforcement officials, pharmacists, health care providers, and representatives of other community agencies who are launching the new Patch 4 Patch program in Haliburton County. Patch 4 Patch is a fentanyl patch return program, modeled after other communities like the City of Kawartha Lakes, Peterborough and North Bay.

"The inappropriate use of prescription drugs like fentanyl is becoming a huge public health and safety issue," note Const. Dauphinee. "In particular, the misuse of fentanyl is on the rise. It's happening in surrounding communities, and without an initiative here like Patch 4 Patch, it could become a bigger problem in Haliburton County."

While fentanyl is a legitimate and powerful painkiller prescribed by doctors, it is increasingly being misused. According to the Canadian Centre on Substance Abuse, there were at least 655 deaths in Canada between 2009 and 2014 where fentanyl was determined to be a cause or a contributing cause. Between 2011 and 2013, a fentanyl-implicated death occurred in Ontario about every three to four days. "Many people have died from accidental drug overdoses due to fentanyl misuse," says Const. Dauphinee. "The reality is that these deaths are preventable."

The Patch 4 Patch Program is designed to reduce the harm caused by the misuse of fentanyl patches, says Leslie McLaughlin, a public health nurse with the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit. The Patch 4 Patch program works as a "one in and one out" model, she notes, in which patients are asked to return used fentanyl patches to the pharmacy before they are able to receive more patches.

Patch 4 Patch is geared to reducing the risk of fentanyl patches ending up on the street. In these situations, fentanyl patches are being cut up, then illegally sold or inappropriately used. The fentanyl is being chewed, smoked or injected as a drug by users, resulting in an increased risk of accidental overdoses and deaths. "Patch 4 Patch is a valuable partnership among physicians, pharmacists, patients and police to promote the safe, effective and responsible use of fentanyl patches," McLaughlin adds.

The Patch 4 Patch Program was officially launched on Monday, Sept. 14 in Haliburton County at an information event held for doctors, pharmacists and other local health care providers. More information about the Patch 4 Patch program is available by contacting the health unit at 1-866-888-4577.

The September Spike

Across Ontario and throughout Canada, hospital emergency department personnel are bracing themselves. That's because they'll soon be dealing with a sudden influx of children and teenagers suffering severe asthma symptoms.

It's known as the September Spike, the annual increase in asthma-related ER visits that happens just after the start of school. Cold viruses spread easily from person to person and are among the most common triggers for asthma symptoms. When children are in close contact with each other in classrooms, schoolyards and buses, these germs spread and increase the risk of infection. For the one in five students who live with asthma, that can mean trouble.

"Many doctors refer to the September Spike as asthma's 'perfect storm'," says Carole Madeley, director of respiratory health programs with the Ontario Lung Association. "Cold viruses, combined with the fact that many kids with asthma have changed or interrupted their regular asthma management schedule over the summer months, act as major triggers. An asthma attack can also be triggered by exposure to allergens such as ragweed, dust, mould and pet dander on other children's clothing."

Madeley says that effective asthma management requires daily effort, avoiding triggers such as colds through regular and thorough handwashing and taking controller medication as prescribed. "The use of controller medication significantly reduces the risk of an asthma flare-up and a trip to the hospital," she said. "By ensuring good asthma control, parents can protect a child with asthma throughout the year and ensure that they can lead full and active lives."

If you have questions about asthma or other lung health issues, call The Lung Association Lung Health Information Line at 1-888-344-LUNG (5864).

How to respond when encountering animals on the road

In the summer of 2015, a video of dozens of cars swerving to avoid a family of ducks crossing a busy Minnesota freeway went viral. While no people or ducks were injured in that incident, impromptu animal crossings are a potential hazard on roadways where drivers are unaccustomed to sharing the road with four-legged counterparts. In the wake of the video, state officials urged drivers not to stop for animals because of the hazards posed by sudden stopping.

Drivers may have mixed feelings on whether or not to put their lives in jeopardy to save an errant animal, but sometimes there is little time to make a decision. As more neighborhoods and roadways infringe on natural habitats, incidents of animals on the roadways figure to increase. Deer, moose, elk, and smaller animals can wander out onto busy roads, and there's no foolproof way to prevent it.

According to State Farm Insurance, roughly 1.5 million animal-car accidents occur each year, resulting in 10,000 injuries, 150 deaths and $2,500 in property damage on average. Knowing what to do when encountering animals on the road can help drivers avoid accidents and injuries.

- Experts advise drivers to remain in their lanes and to attempt to slow down as quickly as possible when encountering animals on the road. Move slowly in the direction the animal was coming from if it's safe, as animal instinct is to dart out in the direction it was going.
- Be aware of your surroundings at all times. Scan the edges of the road to see if animals are present. Dawn and dusk are key times for animals to be on the move looking for food. Autumn is both hunting and mating season for deer, and they tend to travel a lot during this time of year.
- Obey speed limits and take signs warning of animal crossing hotspots seriously.
- Should you hit an animal, do not exit the car and approach it. Injured animals can be dangerous, with pain driving them to flail, kick or bite.

Sharing roadways with animals is tricky. Remaining alert, slowing down in highly populated wildlife areas and avoiding swerving can reduce risk of accident or injury.

We all win

Enter contest to win a free lunch for your organization during Healthy Workplace Month in October

Whoever said there is no such thing as a free lunch was unaware of a new contest open to workplaces in Northumberland County, Haliburton County and the City of Kawartha Lakes.

To mark Healthy Workplace Month in October, local workplaces are being encouraged to enter the We All Win with Workplace Health Contest for a chance to win a $100 gift certificate towards a healthy catered lunch for their employees. The contest is sponsored by the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit.

"The name of the contest sums it up, because everyone wins with workplace health… employees, their families, and the entire community," says Lisa van der Vinne, a health promoter with the HKPR District Health Unit. "A healthy workplace creates the right conditions where employees can enjoy work-life balance. That supports healthier families, which in turn benefits the entire community."

There are two ways to enter the We All Win with Workplace Health Contest:

- Sign up for the health unit's monthly workplace health e-newsletter, or
- Share information or photos of a healthy activity planned at work during Healthy Workplace Month in October.

To sign up for the contest, call the health unit toll-free at 1-866-888-4577 ext. 1256, or email healthyworkplaces@hkpr.on.ca. Complete details, contest rules and healthy activity ideas are also available at www.solutions2workstress.ca. Deadline to enter the We All Win with Workplace Health Contest is Oct. 31.

Organizations that need further help with their workplace health programs can also call for assistance. The health unit provides free and confidential consultation and support services to help local employers get on the path to success.

Greg Cholkan
The Law Talkin' Guy

Now that I have your attention, let's turn to something less interesting: contracts. In particular: do you actually have to sign a contract to create a legally binding agreement? But don't worry – we're still going to be talking about a hockey team.

The Vancouver Canucks had been in a contractual relationship with Canon since 2003. Canon leased office equipment to the Canucks and in return the Canucks sold Canon sponsorship. The 2003 agreement expired on Aug. 31, 2008. As the first agreement expired, the parties entered into negotiations to create a new one. They exchanged a large number of emails but never signed a new contract.

Based on the content of the e-mails, the Canucks thought that they had entered into a binding agreement. Canon disagreed. The Canucks sued Canon for breach of contract. For once, the Canucks actually won something: the trial judge agreed that a binding agreement had been create despite the fact that the parties had not reached agreement on a key term, both parties claimed that any agreement was subject to their respective lawyers' review, and neither party had actually signed anything.

Canon appealed. But the Court of Appeal for British Columbia agreed with the trial judge and said that the parties had in fact come to an agreement. It seems like a strange decision, doesn't it? But Canon's agents made a few key mistakes throughout the course of negotiations.

For example, in one email, one of Canon's representatives wrote that they wanted to "continue their sponsorship [with the Canucks] with the same rights and benefits that were in place." The Canucks confirmed the benefits to which Canon was referring. The latter then responded by writing: "we have an agreement in principle."

Moreover, Canon admitted that it frequently works under "agreements that have been reached by way of exchange of emails." To top it off, they already started using the season tickets that were given to them as part of the agreement. It's hard to convince a court that there's no deal when you acted as if there was one!

The answer to our question, then, is no: you don't actually have to sign a contract to create a legally binding agreement. So be careful when you negotiate a contact. A legally binding agreement isn't formed when a piece of paper is signed: it's created when there's an offer, an acceptance of that offer, and consideration (some form of payment, even nominal). A court will look at the intentions and actions of the parties when determining whether these requirements have been met.

Legion holding open house

The Haliburton Legion wants people to know what they're all about. On Friday, Sept. 25, they are holding an open house from 1 to 5 p.m. in the clubroom, offering refreshments, a meet and greet and displays of the work done by the organization.

"We want to let people know what their Legion does for the community," says public relations officer Dave Allen.

Friday's event is part of Legion Week, a provincial initiative to draw attention to the role Legions play in our community. There are 400 branches of the Legion in the Ontario Provincial Command with more than 121,000 members.

Besides being a venue for area events, gatherings and fundraisers, the local Legion is also a fundraising body, holds weekly breakfasts, meat draws and community activities. (On Saturday, Sept. 26, for example, the Haliburton Legion is hosting a dart tournament.)

You don't have to be a member to participate in most of the events that happen at the Legion.

Allen said there is a new executive and a new president, Paul Sisson. Some people will be at the meet and greet in uniform.

Chair yoga enhancing health in Wilberforce

Each Tuesday, the Wilberforce branch of the Haliburton County Public Library is hosting chair yoga with local instructor Nesta Falladown.

The one-hour sessions are free to anyone interested and is suitable for anyone with mobility issues, Falladown says.

Participants will do the stretches and poses either from a seated position on the chairs or using the chairs for support, making it ideal for beginners.

Yoga improves strength and range of motion and Falladown is also incorporating breathing practice and relaxation techniques into her sessions.

No equipment is needed for those wishing to participate – mats, belts and blankets will all be provided.

Falladown, a certified Iyengar instructor, runs North Star Studio near Wilberforce and has been teaching yoga in the area since 2011.

Chair yoga classes will run each Tuesday at the Wilberforce branch of the library from 1 to 2 p.m. starting Sept. 22 and running until the end of November. While the sessions are free, donations taken at the class will go to Friends of the Library.

To contact Falladown, email nestafalladown@bell.net.

Journey through grief with SIRCH

By Chad Ingram

Those trying to navigate the devastating aftermath of losing a loved one may find solace and learn some coping techniques with Journey Through Grief, a bereavement program offered by SIRCH Community Services.

"Usually people come to the program between four and six months after [the loss,]" says program co-ordinator Marilyn Rydberg.

Those people may have lost a spouse, child, parent, another family member or close friend, she says.

"There are people of all ages who come to our groups."

The program runs for 10 weeks, from Sept. 22 to Nov. 24, with sessions taking place on Tuesdays.

The program has multiple levels, Level 1 being for newcomers.

Attendees can choose from sessions from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., or from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays throughout the length of the program.

"Reaching out for support takes a lot of courage," Rydberg says. "Nobody who comes the first day wants to be there."

Level 1 is about processing grief.

"A lot of it has to do with group dynamics," Rydberg says. "What is grief, and how do I deal with what I'm coping with? Mainly, it's an understanding."

Level 2 of the program, reserved for those who have completed the first level, looks to the future.

"Who's this new person, without this loved one in my life?" Rydberg says, explaining the second level teaches participants how to move on with life.

The program, now two years old, has been so popular Rydberg says a Level 3, a sort of drop-in to reconnect with group members, is going to be introduced.

SIRCH can also direct bereaved people to other forms of support in the community. There are one-on-one supports, for instance, for those who do not like groups.

"We don't want people to be alone," Rydberg says.

The program is offered free of charge as it is paid for through fundraising, including this year's inaugural Release of the Butterflies at the Minden Hills Cultural Centre.

The program, delivered by trained volunteers, is also sponsored by the Haliburton Funeral Home.

Sessions are held at SIRCH's new hub at 2 Victoria Street in Haliburton Village.

For more information, call Rydberg at 705-457-1742, ext. 30.

Dogs and their unique relationship with weather

Owning a dog is a big responsibility, but one that also provides a companion whose love is unconditional. Dog owners quickly learn their four-legged friends respond differently than humans to certain situations, including the changing weather.

Many dog owners may notice that their pets seem particularly attuned to the weather. Changing weather can affect canines much like it does people, but dogs may also be affected in ways their owners are not. According to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, dogs can feel changes in barometric pressure and even in the static electric field that occurs in the air. The American Animal Hospital Association says dogs' behavioral changes may be attributable to changes in the weather. Dogs may become agitated or overexcited by dips in barometric pressure. As electrical storms approach, some dogs may get very anxious, even running and hiding if their anxiety is especially high.

Many dogs are afraid of thunder and lightning and can sense approaching storms even when they are still miles away. According to researchers at Penn State University, between 15 and 30 per cent of all dogs are extremely scared of thunder and may experience a rapid increase of cortisol, a stress hormone.

Dogs also can sniff out storms, detecting concentrations of chemicals common during some storms. Dogs can smell ozone in the air associated with lightning as well.

Dogs may be physically affected by weather just like their owners are. Although there is little scientific work specifically on the Effects of cold or damp weather on dogs that occurs during autumn and early winter, it does seem that canines feel the effects of these changes. Owners often notice more stiffness and lameness in pets during adverse weather conditions. Pain resulting from arthritis may increase and muscles may stiffen when the climate becomes cooler.

Many animals are known to have an innate sense of changing weather or oncoming storms. Dogs can learn to anticipate meaning behind atmospheric changes that can alert others to upcoming weather.

Chamber choir to delight audiences this Saturday

The Haliburton Concert Series is delighted to present the Elmer Iseler Singers for the second concert of its 2015 season. The concert takes place on Saturday, Sept. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion.

The Elmer Iseler Singers, conducted by artistic director Lydia Adams, is a 20-voice professional chamber choir based in Toronto. Founded by the late Dr. Elmer Iseler in 1979, it is one of Canada's most illustrious professional choral ensembles. The choir has built an enviable international reputation through its concerts, broadcasts and more than 50 recordings. Known for its unique beauty of sound, the Elmer Iseler Singers bring to life an exciting repertoire that spans 500 years of great choral music.

This is a concert that choral-music lovers won't want to miss! Tickets are going fast, so be sure to get yours soon from June Smith at 705-457-3272 or june.smith705@gmail.com. $30 for adults, $10 for students. We are able to offer these wonderful concerts at such low prices due to the generous support of the Ontario Arts Council.

More details about our series are available from our website: www.haliburtoncs.blogspot.com.

What to do if you find a sick, injured or abandoned wild animal

If you see what you think may be a sick, injured or abandoned animal, don't remove it from its natural habitat. It may not need assistance and you could do more harm trying to help.

When an animal needs help, it requires specialized care to recover and return to the wild.

You cannot keep wildlife in captivity without approval from the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry. A person may possess a wild animal for up to 24 hours to transport it to a wildlife rehabilitator or veterinarian.

Determining if Wildlife is Abandoned

Some species leave their offspring alone temporarily, especially during the day. For example, deer and cottontail rabbits spend much of the day away from their well-camouflaged offspring to minimize the chance of predators finding them.

To determine if a young animal has been abandoned, check it periodically for 24 to 48 hours to see if it is still around. Keep your distance. Keep cats and dogs away from the area. The adult animal may not return if it is noisy or if predators or people are close by.

Figuring out what to do

Contact your local Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry office to learn more about what you can do to help.

- Visit ontario.ca/mnrfoffices to contact your local district office
- Call 1-800-667-1940 from Monday to Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- View the rescue a sick, injured or abandoned wild animal webpage
- View a list of wildlife rehabilitators who have agreed to have their contact information included on the ministry's website.

Signs of Injury or Illness:

- Blood, wounds or swelling on the body
- Body covered in fleas
- Unusual or uneven loss of fur or feathers
- Substantial hair loss or with visible winter ticks
- Difficult or raspy breathing or sneezing
- A dangling leg or wing
- Closed eyes and head tucked under wing

Care Necessary to Help the Animal

- Contact a wildlife rehabilitator who can help you assess the situation and provide advice on what to do.
- If specialized and immediate care is necessary to help the animal, take it to a wildlife rehabilitator or a veterinarian within 24 hours.
- If you must handle the animal, follow the instructions provided by the wildlife rehabilitator on how to minimize risk of injury to yourself and to the animal.
- Wear protective clothing and equipment, such as leather gloves, to avoid bites or scratches, and wash hands after handling the animal.

It is important to recognize that many of the volunteer-operated organizations have limited capacity to accept animals, especially during the spring.

Diseased or Dead Wildlife

- To report dead animals, including birds or bats, contact the Canadian Wildlife Health Cooperative at www.cwhc-rcsf.ca/ or call 1-866-673-4781.
- If you suspect there is a public health risk from a sick wild animal, such as rabies, or you or your pet had contact with a suspected rabid animal, contact your local public health unit immediately. For more information, call Service Ontario toll-free at 1-866-532-3161.
- Rabies is fatal for humans and animals, if not treated.
- Symptoms of rabies and several other diseases in animals can include tremors, aggressive behaviour, partial paralysis, convulsions, and loss of fear of humans.

For more information on wildlife in captivity, visit ontario.ca/environment-and-energy/keep-wild-animals-captivity.

Colourfest is coming

For the eighth year, Haliburton Village will be hosting Colourfest – a fall festival including contests, prizes, entertainment and a vintage car show.

On Saturday, Oct. 3 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., downtown Haliburton will be awash in fall colours and community fun, says the festival's new co-ordinator Autumn Smith.

"Colourfest has been an eight-year tradition and I'm looking forward to continuing the legacy," she said in a press release.

The festival began in 2008 and is funded by the Haliburton BIA.

Those interested in volunteering can contact Smith at highlandautumn@mail.com or 705-455-2194.

Volunteers needed for shoreline planting

Watersheds Canada and the Coalition of Haliburton Property Owners Association is looking for volunteers to take part in shoreline planting this September.

This year, the Coalition of Haliburton Property Owners Association along with Watersheds Canada is creating a natural shoreline riparian zone along a section of shoreline in Rotary Park in Minden. With more than 200 trees and shrubs to be planted, they are looking for volunteers to help make this project possible.

The planting of this site will take place 10 a.m. Sept. 26 and is the perfect opportunity for high school students to earn some volunteer hours. Shovels and gloves will be provided, however, bringing your own shovel would be appreciated. Snacks and refreshments will be provided once the planting has been completed.

For more information or if you would like to sign up to volunteer, please contact Jim McHardy at: jjmchardy@sympatico.ca 705-205-2310.

Ride for Jerry

The first annual Jerry Corby Foundation bike ride was a great success. This event was hosted by the Highlanders bike club, benefiting Community Living. Approx 35 bikers participated, with a police escort through town and a beautiful scenic route through the Highlands to Bancroft and finishing at Community Living with a silent auction, chili, buns and warm coffee. The event raised a little over $2000, benefiting Community Living Haliburton County. We still have T-shirts available for $20 – can be purchased at Community Living 73 Victoria St. – the old Victoria St. School. The Jerry Corby Foundation was set up in memory of an amazing individual who was supported by Community Living. Jerry was always active in the community and was well known in the county. He was kind, caring, a hard worker and good friends with the OPP. Jerry taught us all something – through the Corby Foundation, he will be remembered and all that he stood for will be remembered.

12 fun facts about autumn

The cool, crisp days of autumn have arrived. As fall foliage creates a colorful display and kids frolic in leaf piles on the lawn, you may want to pay some mind to a few lesser known facts about this beloved time of year. Autumn may call to mind Halloween and the return of school, but there are other factors that make this season unique.

1. The first day of autumn is known as the autumnal equinox. On this day, the number of hours of daylight and darkness are equal. This is because the sun is aligned with the centre of the Earth between the north and south of the planet. The other equinox occurs in the spring, which arrives in the third week of March in the northern hemisphere.

2. In Greek mythology, autumn was a time when Persephone, the daughter of Demeter, was abducted by Hades, the god-king of the underworld. During this time, Demeter, the goddess of the harvest, was distraught and the ground grew sparse and cold. When Persephone returned in the springtime, plants and life bloomed anew because of Demeter's happiness.

3. Those who live closest to the equator, which is the centre of the planet, never experience the season of autumn. Around the equator, the temperature remains consistently warm.

4. Yellow, orange and variations thereof always reside in the pigmentation of tree leaves, but they are just overpowered by the abundance of green from the chlorophyll in the leaves. Come autumn, however, when the sun weakens and days grow shorter, the amount of chlorophyll in leaves diminishes, allowing the other pigments in the leaves to show through.

5. Red and purple leaves are actually caused by the presence of sugars from sap that is trapped inside of the leaves.

6. Fall is a peak migration time for many species of birds. During autumn, birds will fly to other areas as they seek more hospitable climates. The Arctic tern journeys about 11,000 miles each way for its annual migration. That is like going all the way across the United States about three and a half times

7. Contrary to popular belief, squirrels who have spent the entire autumn collecting acorns and other foods do not hibernate for the winter. Rather, they spend the majority of their time in nests they built to shelter them from harsh weather. When squirrels do come out in winter, they are usually tunneling under the snow to find the food they buried during the fall.

8. Several cultures have ancient traditions that coincide with autumn. For example, the Chinese celebrate the Moon Festival to give thanks for a successful summer harvest.

9. Halloween is a large part of autumn. The concept of wearing masks and costumes hails from ancient Celtic tradition. The Celts believed ghosts roamed on Halloween, and people wore disguises to hide from the spirits.

10. You're bound to see pumpkins as part of autumn decor. The pumpkin was first named by the Greeks. They called this edible orange item "pepon," which means "large melon."

11. Evergreen trees will not lose their leaves like deciduous trees. Their leaves, also called needles, are covered with a thick wax. This wax protects the inner components of the needles, preventing them from freezing.

12. Autumn also signals another colorful spectacle apart from the tree leaves. The aurora borealis, also known as the Northern Lights, tends to be visible this time of year. This is because geomagnetic storms are about twice as likely to occur during the fall thanks to cool evening weather.

Apple fast facts

Autumn is a time of year when homes get dressed up with scarecrows and jack-o-lanterns as kids plan their perfect Halloween costumes and seemingly every recipe has a touch of cinnamon and nutmeg added in for good measure. Apples also experience a surge in visibility come the fall.

Apples are one of the most widely-grown tree fruits and become available for picking in early fall. They can be put to use in all different types of food applications from desserts to sauces to beverages. As a stand-alone snack, apples are a healthy source of antioxidants and fiber. Apples have many other qualities and an interesting history. Consider these facts about apples.

- The term "apple" comes from the Olde English word, "aeppel."
- Apples are believed to have originated somewhere between the Caspian and Black Seas, but now they are grown all over the world.
- The main producers of apples in the United States include the states of Washington, New York, Michigan, Pennsylvania, California, and Virginia.
- There are thousands of different apple varieties.
- Apples were taken to North America by European settlers.
- Honeybees are a popular pollinator of apple trees.
- Apple seeds contain a small amount of cyanide compound. They're not harmful if eaten in small quantities.
- Many apple harvests are still picked by hand.
- Fifteen types of apples account for 90 percent of total production. Red Delicious, Gala, Golden Delicious, Granny Smith, and Fuji lead the way.
- A bushel of apples weighs 42 pounds while a peck weighs approximately 10.5 pounds.
- The crabapple is the only apple native to North America.
- Apple trees won't bear their first fruits until they have matured four to five years.
- The largest apple picked weighed three pounds.
- Apples are good Halloween bounty to receive in lieu of candy. The nutritional benefits of apples spurred the saying, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away."
- It's fun to go apple-picking, and many people flock to orchards in September and October to pick their own apples.
